Thaermo®

THAERMO® is a thermal insulation material jointly developed by Chengda International and Dalian University of Technology, which has obtained the national invention patent. It is a thermal insulation and temperature adjustment material made of phase change aerogel, with low thermal conductivity and high thermal insulation, as well as excellent thermal insulation and temperature adjustment.

Temperature-regulating polymer material THAERMO®

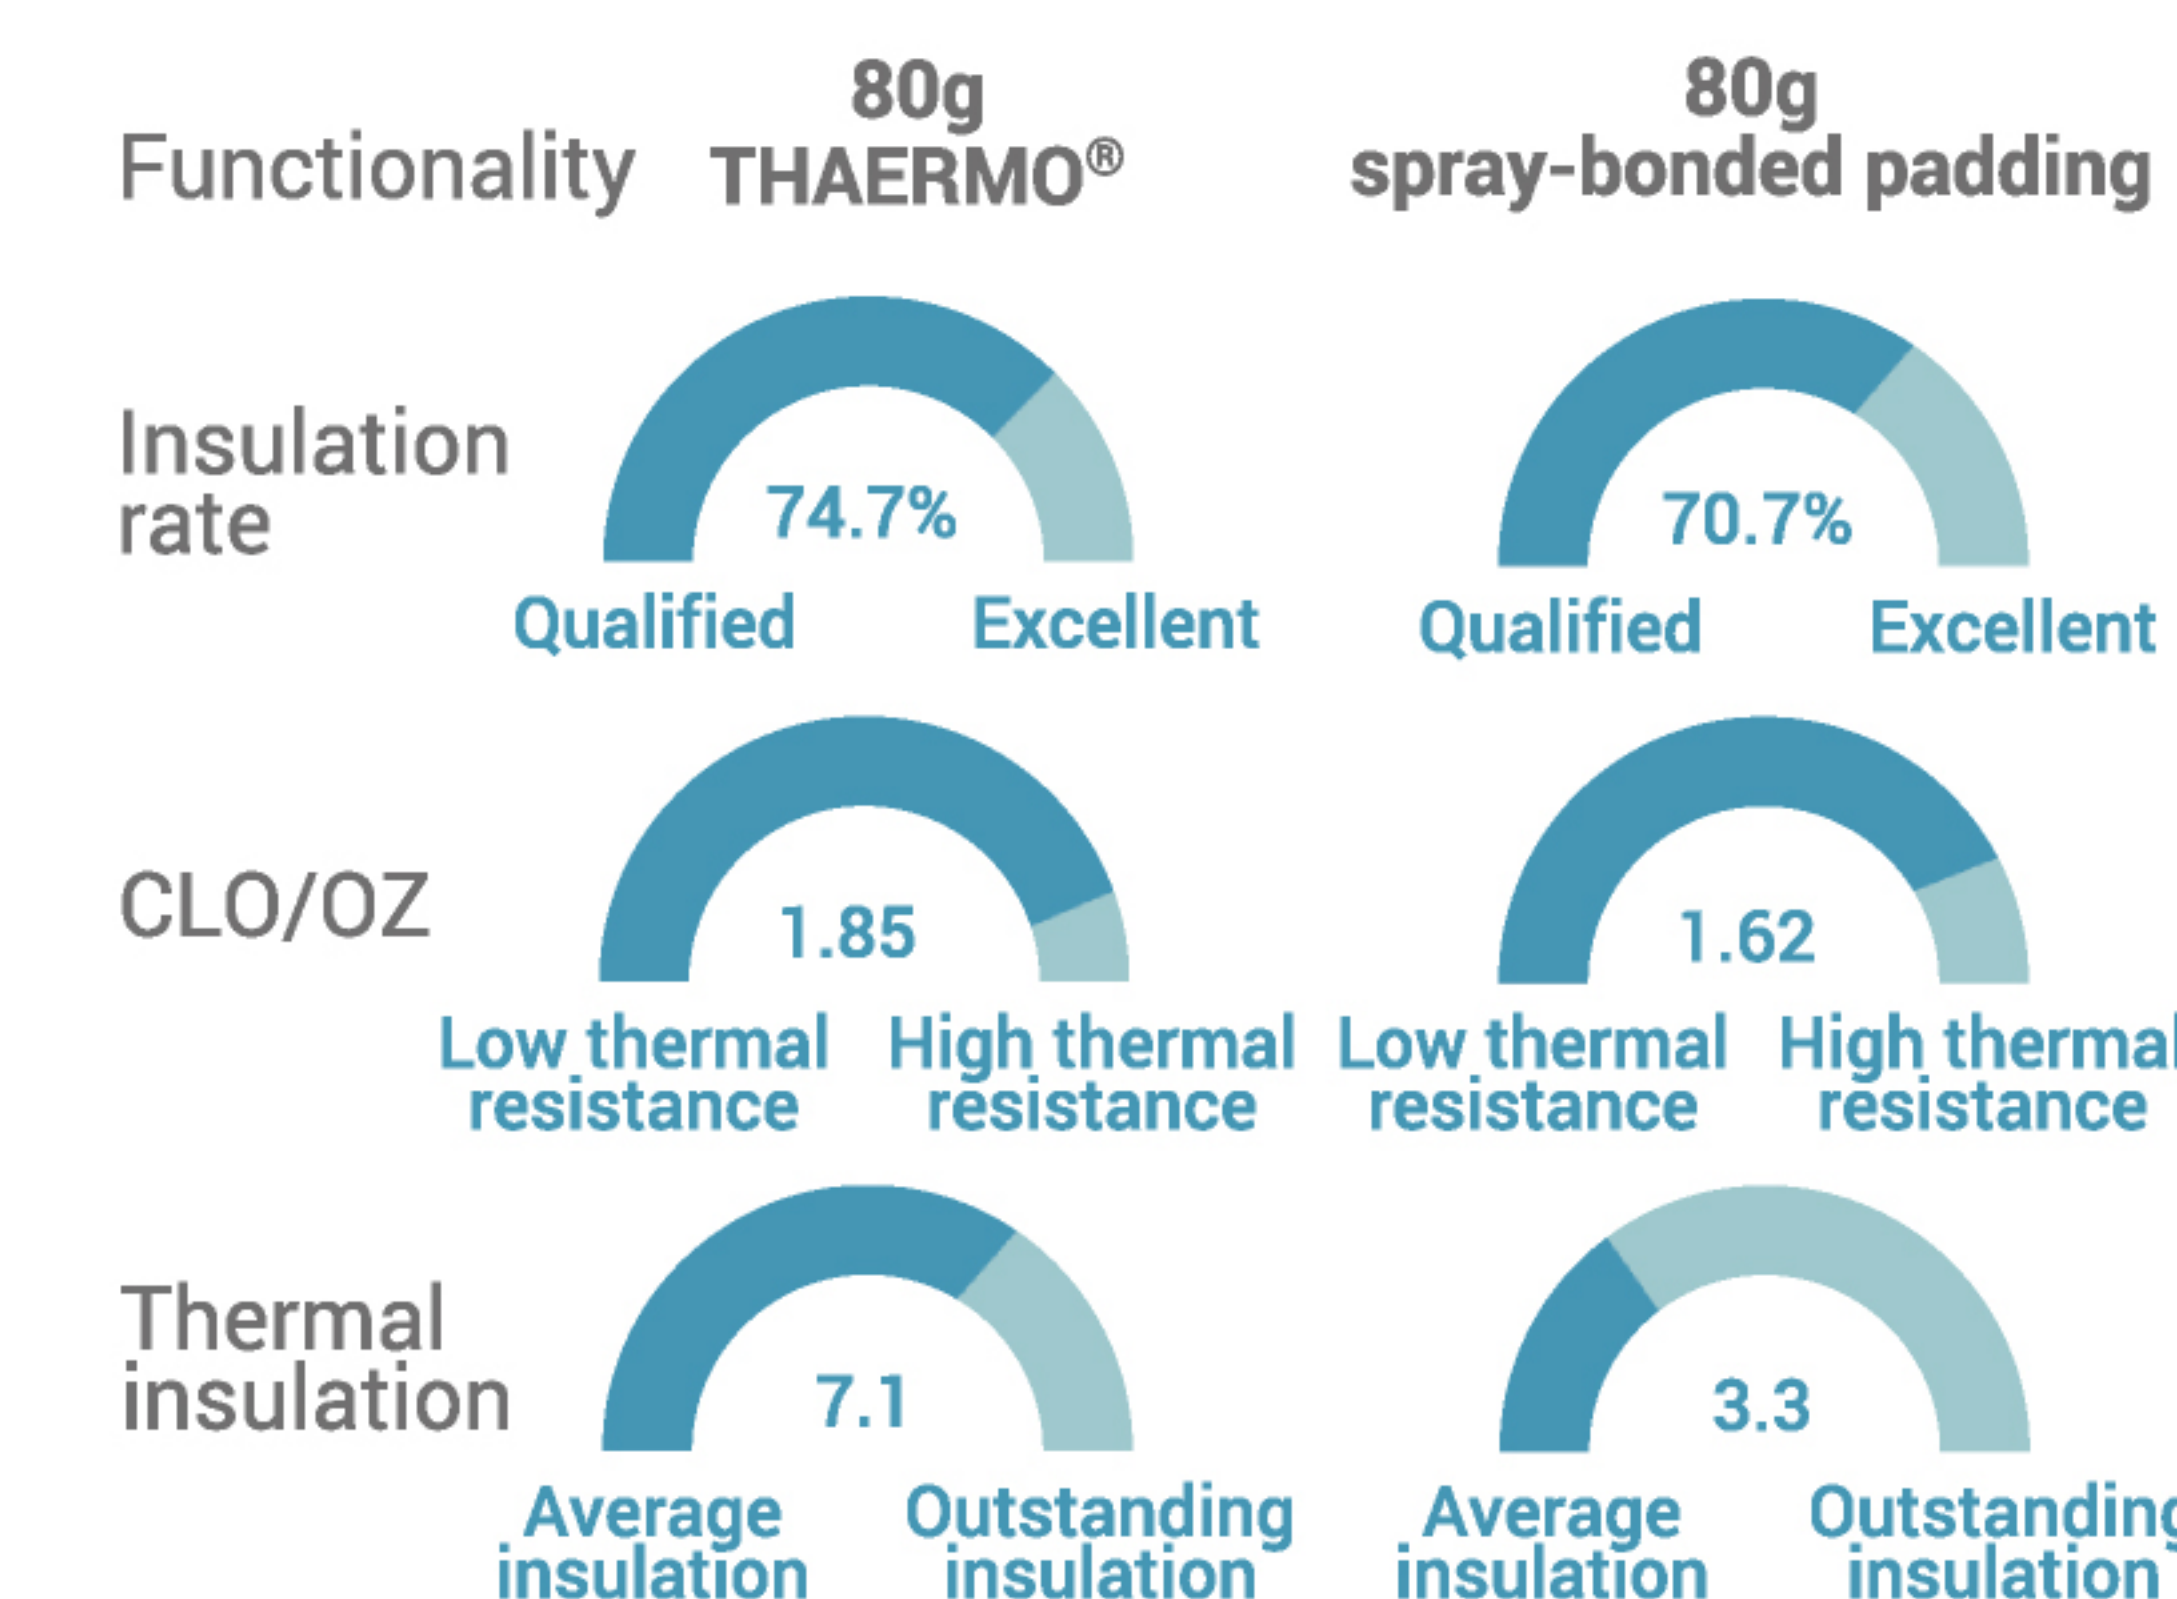

THAERMO® is a porous material with low thermal conductivity due to its low density, and therefore has very good thermal insulation.

The phase change material will have a phase change reaction when the temperature is lower than the comfortable temperature of the human body, that is, solid-liquid conversion, to release or absorb heat. Therefore, it has the effect of temperature adjustment.

Applications

Intelligent textiles, thermal insulation materials, cold chain transportation, and protective materials.
